MODULE LECTURER: Dr Torkelson

What aspects of the module did you appreciate or value?

I enjoy being pushed to think more critically. I also learned to read to understand which also allowed me to pinpoint the different authors' main arguments. This made it easy to compare different articles/authors.

What aspects of the module did you find difficult?

Initially, I found the readings a bit challenging to grasp but this changed quickly as the class progressed.

This module helped me to achieve the intended learning outcomes as below:

Understand the globalization process and its impact on urban development in African cities;

Critically think about urban socio-spatial issues in a theoretically grounded manner;

Understand a selection of themes that represent significant foci in current urban geographical research, emphasizing the African context;

Demonstrate both academic writing skills and visual and spatial literacy at the postgraduate level.

No

Module recommendation 'yes'

You mentioned that you would recommend this module to other students. Please explain why you would recommend it to others.

It is a highly valuable that all Honours students could benefit from. Being able to find good sources, read with understanding, and finally write a literature review can be a daunting task and this module alleviated a lot of that stress.

Module recommendation 'no'

You mentioned that you would not recommend this module to other students. Please explain why not.

MODULE LECTURER: Dr Torkelson

What aspects of the module did you appreciate or value?

The face-to-face interactions; the opportunity to be able to choose readings that are relevant to my study/ research project, and the opportunity to improve my academic reading writing skills.

What aspects of the module did you find difficult?

The readings and having to submit reading journals every week. Though they were helpful at the end and i got to understand their value towards my writing skills and my final project.
